Excerpt: . Dh. Page s maintenance of daily clinics is mentioned in Article II of this series ( The Margin of Error in the Diagnosis of Mental Disease ), where also are reprinted the conclusions of the writer s papers on Errors in the Diagnosis of General Paresis and Anatomical Findings in Senile Dementia, both of which studies are wholly dependent on this system of daily clinics. The following is taken from the writer s discussion (with minor errors corrected) of Dr. Elbert M. Somers paper before the American Medico-Psychological Association at Atlantic City in 1909, on The Value of Staff Conferences in State Hospitals. Dr. Southard. -- I would like to say a word about the economy of this conference system, because lately I have been enjoying the fruits of the daily staff conference at Danvers Hospital in a review of autopsy findings in...
