CHAPTER X EXTENSION ORGANIZATION AND THROUGH-THE-WEEK ACTIVITIES Self-expression is at once the motive and the method of all culture, --Littlefield, Handwork in the Sunday School. Whatever phases of the religious life we emphasize in our department program and in our class instruction it is very necessary that we remember that the universal method of learning is through physical and mental activity. Even as late as the junior grades learning should be closely associated with physical activity within a very short time after the truth to be learned is presented. If the superintendent and teachers of the Junior Department are willing to study the project method of teaching until they have at least partially mastered it, they will have found the true way of teaching boys and girls. The Creation stories, the Patriarchal stories, the Conquest stories, the Kingdom stories, Saint Pauls Missionary Journeys, in fact, any portion of Bible material appropriate for juniors is suggestive of a project or enterprise, that may be worked out by a class or grade of juniors, each of which will give an opportunity of collecting, organizing and mastering knowledge relative to the Christian life for the junior and furnish a field for physical and social activities as broad as the junior will need. The immediate purpose of all our teaching is that the pupil may learn how to behave in every relationship and the immediate purpose of all directed activity is that the pupil may have practice in right behavior....
